A Trip to the Market

Maria usually shops for food on Saturdays. She makes a list before she goes to the market. Today, she needs some fruit, a few vegetables, and a little milk. When she gets to the store, she looks for apples first. There are not many apples left, but she finds a few good ones. She also buys some bananas and some oranges.

In the vegetable section, Maria wants tomatoes, but there aren't any fresh ones. She feels a little disappointed, but she finds some nice carrots and lettuce instead. She also buys a little rice and a few cans of soup. When she gets to the checkout, she looks at her cart and smiles. She doesn't have too much food, but she has enough for the week.

Cooking Dinner for Friends

Last night, David decided to cook dinner for his friends. He looked in his kitchen and saw that he had some rice, a few onions, and a little chicken. He didn't have many vegetables, so he went to the store to buy some tomatoes, peppers, and carrots. There weren't any mushrooms left, but he didn't mind.

When he got home, David started cooking. He cut a few onions and cooked them with some oil. Then he added a little salt and pepper. He mixed everything with the chicken and rice. Soon, the kitchen smelled delicious! He made a few small salads, too, but he didn't use much dressing because his friends don't like it.

When his friends arrived, they were very happy. There was enough food for everyone, but not too much. They ate, laughed, and said the meal was wonderful. David smiled and thought, "Cooking isn't hard when you have some good ingredients and a few friends."
